This PRELIMINARY section of your Catz-i.com ADI Training Course Guide is designed as an induction to the Driving Instructor Training Course. In this section you will find all the important things you need to know from the onset.

SO FAR SO GOOD

You will have already attended an induction, to which you will have received the following information:

- ⚠ How to get the best out of your course
- ⚠ How the course works
- ⚠ How the Course Guide works
- ⚠ What our aims are
- ⚠ What your aims should be

The following documents

- ⚠ A full training kit which included this Course Guide

Answer the following question in the box provided below.

Q. What are the two most important things you were asked to remember from your induction?

A.

Your answers to the question on the previous page should look something like this:

A.

1. Open the course Guide to the relevant section.
2. No matter how good this course is, I won't get out what I don't put in.

ANALYSIS

Did you identify the two most important elements?

If you are using the video guide you probably got the correct answer. Number two is very important, because you need to know that you are the most important element in this course. Without you playing a full part, learning will not prove to be completely successful. If you did not remember the answers from your induction, be careful you don't miss out on a lot of very useful information.

If you come across a problem that is preventing you from getting on with your home study, contact your Trainer, email me directly or use the forum.

If the problem is not urgent, mention it at the beginning of your next lesson. Your Instructor Trainer is there to help you.

There are four parts to the Preliminary Section
